

Hooper Maria vs. Hurricane Maria

Maria Blazejewski survives Puerto Rico’s devastation

By Aubrey Ann Parker
Current Editor

Earlier this summer, we profiled Maria Blazejewski in Volume VI Issue 5 of The Betsie Current. Blazejewski, 26, originally from Beulah and a 2009 graduate of Benzie Central High School, has been playing professional basketball abroad for three and a half seasons—but it is still unclear if she will get her fourth season, after Hurricane Maria’s tempestuous troubles in Puerto Rico, where Blazejewski was slated to play this fall.

Blazejewski, an all-state high school basketball player and soccer goalie who went on to be a four-year starter and three-year all-conference basketball at Lake State Superior University, began playing professional basketball just eight months after graduating college in 2013 with a degree in exercise science. The 6-foot-1-inch forward has played one and a half seasons in the Czech Republic, followed by a season in Germany and a playoff run in Luxembourg. Then last year, she played a condensed season for a Puerto Rican team, the Lajas Lady Cardinals, followed by the second half of the Portuguese season last spring.

After our article ran at the end of July,

Blazejewski accepted a spot on a different Puerto Rican team for the condensed fall season, consisting of three games per week for 12 weeks, compared to the nine-month European seasons. This time, Blazejewski was set to play in Morovis—if that name sounds familiar, it is most likely because you have heard it on the evening news, associated with Puerto Rico’s epicenter of destruction from Hurricane Maria, which hit the island as a high-end Category 4 hurricane on September 20.

Maria Blazejewski, meanwhile, had arrived on the island in late August, just over a week before Hurricane Irma hit Puerto Rico and the rest of the Caribbean between the night of September 5 and the early morning hours of September 6. Blazejewski had been practicing for less than a week with her new team when Hurricane Irma hit, but in that case, the damage to Morovis—a municipality of about 35,000 people in the north-central par of the main island of Puerto Rico—was minimal: they lost power for a few days, but the majority of Irma’s destruction had hit the northern and eastern sides of Puerto Rico, including Culebra and Vieques, smaller islands off of the main island that have been declared “disaster areas,” due to Irma.

Blazejewski says that a few of the team’s games were pushed back due to the power outage, but then they had about another week of practice and actually got to play two games before warnings for Hurricane Maria began. This time around, Morovis was in the hurricane’s projected path, so Blazejewski drove herself to stay with friends that she had made last year in Lajas, a municipality of about 30,000 people along the southwestern coast

Dennis Pace Remembered

Saying goodbye to an old friend

By Staff Reports

Editor’s Note: Typically, this publication is not in the habit of printing obituaries, just as we do not have a classifieds section or op-ed contributors, nor do we highlight the outcomes of local elections or athletic events. These are simply not the kind of things that we run, given that there is already a newspaper in town doing just that. Rather, our pages are filled with what we consider to be (mostly) uplifting feature stories about the interesting people, places, and events of Benzie County.

However, we have recently had to ask ourselves what our publication would do in practice when the certainties of life occur: every year, we profile and/or interview dozens of people, adding up to hundreds just in the last four years of publishing. And eventually, it was going to happen—we were going to lose one of the people whom we had interviewed.

Dr. Dennis Eugene Pace is the first that we are aware of.

We profiled Pace back in September 2015, 10 months before his cancer diagnosis. On Friday, October 21, 2017, Pace—father, son, brother, grandfather, friend, guitar-playing member of the band, athlete, soccer coach, and Doctor of Optometry—died in his hometown of Phoenix, Arizona, where he had been spending the past few months with family after his prolonged illness.

Although running obituaries is not common place for The Betsie Current, we, the editors, believe that there is value in updating Pace’s story for our readers. What follows is the obituary for our beloved friend and community-activist mentor, Dennis Pace, who helped thousands of Benzie kids to play soccer over the course of two decades, who quietly and behind-the-scenes saved the Benzonia ice-skating rink, who found the funds and cut through the red tape of creating Benzie County’s first dog park. Sincerity and grace are the first things that come to mind when reflecting on this 6-foot-four gentle giant, who lived a life of selflessness and service, with a deep legacy that this community can be proud of. We love you, and we miss you terribly.

Pace, born in Phoenix, Arizona, on February 17, 1959, is survived by: his parents, Ralph and Naomi Pace; his children, Dakota Easlick and Isabel Lorton (Adam); his grandchildren Madeline and Andrew Dennis Lorton; and his siblings, Lynn Blake (Peter), and Dean Pace (Barbara). He was a true friend to many in Benzie County, where he lived for the past 30 years. A devoted father, he shepherded his children with love and integrity.

In 1981, he received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Economics from the University of California Berkeley, and later, a teaching degree from California State University Chico. He, much later, graduated from the Michigan College of Optometry at Ferris State University and practiced in Beulah and Traverse City for twenty years. Pace was a member of several missions to Haiti that were devoted to helping those less fortunate with their vision problems.

Prior to optometry, he taught as Principal for Head Start, teaching the children of migrant farmworkers to speak English by having them sing along with him while he played guitar.

Committed to his community, Pace helped to run the youth soccer league in Benzonia and Lake Ann, long after his own kids had departed for college.

He was a Trustee and past President of the Darcy Library of Beulah, and his fundraising contributed to a much needed new building.

Pace stood 6’4”, and one of his few regrets was that he did not grow until his late teens. A letterman on his tennis team in high school, he played tennis the rest of his life; however, he loved to play basketball and pursued it with passion well into his forties. At the U.C. Berkeley gym or on the courts of Beulah or Venice Beach, California, he held his own with pro athletes, former high school all-stars, and college players.

An avid hang-glider in his twenties, Pace once flew off the White Mountains of California, overlooking the Eastern Sierra, and caught an updraft to 18,000 feet in a primitive craft, seemingly made of aluminum-lawn-chair tubing and colored Mylar.

Pace had a far-reaching intelligence and continued to learn and do throughout his life. He read science and history avidly and loved a good novel. He knew his way around tools and sailed on Crystal Lake.
